Student Affairs

Athletics

For the fifth straight year, the women's soccer team has attended the NCAA tournament. The men's soccer team has also played well and is participating in the NCAA tournament this year.

Tiffanie Marley, women's cross country, is this year's Cross Country Champion for the West Coast Conference. She is the first WCC Cross Country Champion from USD.

Due to reorganization within Athletics, John Martin and Mike Matoso have been promoted to Associate Athletic Director, and Andrew Fee has been promoted to Assistant Athletic Director.

Greek Week

USD fraternities and sororities concluded Greek Week in October and raised over $10,000 for their charities, the Magdalena Eckle YMCA and St. Jude Children's Research Hospital. Activities included a speaker on sexual assault prevention, a carnival for children, and a volleyball tournament. Thank you to the campus community for supporting this fundraising effort.

Seasoned Greetings from Dining Services!

Pauline Berryman, Assistant Dean, College of Arts and Sciences, co-facilitated a workshop at the Western Regional Conference National Association of Student Personnel Administrators, held at the Loews Hotel on Coronado Island, November 15. Her workshop was entitled, “Women of Color in Higher Education Administration.”

Alana Cordy-Collins, Anthropology, surveyed and photographed a petroglyph site in Baja California and drafted an article about it for publication in January. In February, she organized a presentation by colleague Dr. John Rick (Anthropology, Stanford) for the Invisible University. In March, Dr. Cordy-Collins attended the Heard Museum’s Indian Fair (Phoenix), and an ENSO Conference at SIO/UCSD. During April, she attended the Chancellor’s Invitational Lecture at UCLA, organized the May Gallery installation for spring artist-in-residence, Robert Freeman, gave a PowerPoint presentation for a Campus Diversity Dinner, and coordinated the annual American Indian Celebration. In May, she traveled to northern Arizona/southern Utah to survey petroglyph and pictograph sites. In June-July-August, Dr. Cordy-Collins (along with co-investigators) mapped and photographed La Rosa de Ñampol (an archaeological site in the Jequetepeque Valley, Peru) and drafted the “Solicitud” in preparation for excavation. In July, her article “El mundo Moche al empezar el siglo VIII: transiciones e influencias” was published in the second volume of Moche: Hacia el Final del Milenio (Pontificia Universidad Católica del Perú/Universidad Nacional de Trujillo), and she attended the International Congress of Americanists in Santiago, Chile where she presented a paper, “Aprendiendo a la Distancia: La Arqueología como Puente entre Nosotros,” in the symposium The Space Between: Participatory Strategies in Shamanic Studies. In August, Dr. Cordy-Collins attended the Santa Fe Indian Market (New Mexico). In September, she presented a PowerPoint talk to the San Diego County Archaeological Society, “The Moche Giants of Ancient Peru.” During October, she attended UCLA’s annual “Maya Weekend” and organized the May Gallery installation for fall artist-in-residence, Sylvia Mejia. In November, Dr. Cordy-Collins attended the Southwest Museum’s International Indian Fair (Los Angeles), and presented a paper “Forensic Iconography: and the Moche Giants” (with coauthor, Dr. Charles Merbs, ASU) at the conference “The Art, the Arts, and the Archaeology of the Moche” (UT, Austin). In December, she will attend – as an outside member – the Master’s defense for SDSU student Trish Biers.

Ed DeRoche, Director of the International Center for Character Education, was a panel member on Jane Clifford's Family Hour on ITV on November 19. The program focused on the character development of children and youth and schools' character education efforts.

Patrick Scott Geyer, Research Associate, Anthropology, led a team of USD student interns this fall in a palynological laboratory study of pollen samples from three Native American sites in San Diego County. The report is titled "University of San Diego Palynological Investigation: Reconstructive Pollen Study of the Old Town San Diego Gardens." In October, an article titled "University of San Diego Palynological Investigation of the Dos Cabezas Giants," appeared in the September-October International Journal of Osteoarchaeology (coauthored with two Anthropology graduates, Thomas Larson, now at Texas A&M, and Laura Stroik, now at ASU). In November, Geyer coauthored a Cultural Resource Management report to California State Parks with three Anthropology graduates: Anna DeYoung, Jill Jones, and Jason Richards.

Tim Gross, Research Associate, Anthropology, led a workshop in April in stone tool making at the San Diego Archaeological Center, San Pasqual Valley, San Diego. In June, he presented two lectures to the Sierra Club's Nature Knowledge Workshop on archaeology and native cultures of the Laguna Mountains. In July, he spent three days in intensive study of archaeological collections from the C.W. Harris site (with Claude N. Warren, Professor Emeritus, UNLV). In July, Gross presented a program called "Flintknapping Through Time" as part of the San Diego Museum of Man's Meet the Scientist Program. In August, he assumed the presidency of the board of trustees of the San Diego Archaeological Center and signed a contract with Oxford University Press to junior author a textbook, Seeking Our Past: An Introduction to North American Archaeology (with Sarah Neusius, Indiana University of Pennsylvania). In September, Gross was a workshop presenter in "Archaeology and the Law" for Trustees of the San Diego Archaeological Center. In September, his paper, "Archaeological Identification of an Idiosyncratic Lifestyle: Excavation and Analysis of the Theosophical Society Dump (CA-SDI-10,531H), San Diego, California," (senior author with Stephen Van Wormer, Walter Enterprises) was accepted for publication in Historical Archaeology. In October, Gross collaborated with Erin King, MA student, CSU Northridge, in a study of the archaeological stratification of the Eel Point site, San Clemente Island, California.

Jerome Lynn Hall, Anthropology, along with seven USD students and a full compliment of staff and volunteers, excavated a seventeenth-century northern European merchant vessel on the north coast of the Dominican Republic from June to August. Students participating in the project received three anthropology credits for a course titled "Post-Medieval Seafaring and Empire." In September, Hall attended the Oceans Conference in San Diego, a three day international event highlighting advancements in ocean technology. From September to December he coordinated the 2004 Abilene Christian University Biology Department Visiting Committee Panel for the coming year. In November, Hall gave a lecture and Power Point presentation at the Canyon View Church of Christ titled "The Shipwrecks of St. Paul." In December, Hall submitted two manuscripts for publication: "Across an Indigo Sea" to the INA Quarterly and "A Seventeenth-Century Northern European Merchant Vessel in Monte Cristi Bay, Dominican Republic" to the International Journal of Nautical Archaeology. Additionally, Hall filed excavation reports with the Oficina Nacional de Patrimonio Cultural Subacuático, and the Oficina de Recursos Naturales in the Dominican Republic.

Sally Hardin, School of Nursing and Health Science, authored "Impact of war on American adolescents" published in Journal of Child and Adolescent Psychiatric Nursing 16(2), 81-87. The article was co-authored by E. Hayes, K. H. Cheever, and C. Addy.

Tori Helfin, Anthropology, organized the 15th Forensic Seminar at the San Diego Museum of Man in April. Also during April, she presented the paper "Reconstructing Kumeyaay Lifeways: Determining the Value of Ethnohistoric versus Archaeological Evidence," at the Paleopathology Association's annual meeting in Tempe, Arizona. During that meeting, she was elected a member of the Paleopathology Association Student Concerns Committee. In July, her essay, "A Burst of Creativity," was published in the exhibit catalog Footsteps Through Time (San Diego Museum of Man). In August, Helfin presented a lecture, "Reconstructing Lifestyles through Paleopathology," as part of the 12 o'clock scholar lecture series at the Museum of Man. In October, she was a workshop presenter in UCSD's "Expanding Your Horizons," an event designed to expose 6th to 10th grade girls to careers in math, science, engineering, and technology in San Diego. Her workshop, "Forensic Anthropology: What We Can Learn from the Human Skeleton," was held throughout the day of the event. In November, Heflin presented a lecture, "The Skeleton: A Storehouse of Information," to the MiraCosta College Anthropology Club.

Cynthia Hernandez, Research Associate, Anthropology, has just returned from four months in Brazil collecting ethnomusicology data.

Cheryl Hinton, Anthropology, curated an exhibit in January at the Barona Museum Cultural Center, "The Indian Cowboys of Barona Ranch and San Diego County." The exhibit later traveled to the San Diego Historical Society, accompanied by an August publication. In March, Hinton presented a seminar, "Southern California Indians for Educators" at the Barona Museum. In October she presented a paper, "Tribal Museums: Telling the Story," at the 18th annual California Indian Conference in Watsonville. In August, Hinton curated the exhibit "The Fiftieth Anniversary of the May Crowning at Barona Mission" at the Barona Museum. As an editor for Sunbelt Publishing Company, she edited author David Valley's Jackpot Trail: Indian Gaming in Southern California. Hinton edited My Ancestors' Village (by Roberta Labstida), a book for children about local Southern California Indians for which she also wrote the history section. The book is scheduled for publication in December.

Susan Instone, Mary Rose Mueller, and Tari Gilbert, Ph.D. (cand), School of Nursing and Health Science, authored "Lessons learned about barriers to Hepatitis C testing: Implications for policy" published in Policy, Politics, and Nursing Practice 4 (4), 288-294.

Kathy James, School of Nursing and Health Science, recently published "Healthy families: Healthy bodies, preventing obesity" in Total Health 25(5), 22-24.

Ken Keith, Psychology Department, was co-author of a paper, "Habits of Happiness: Optimism, Hope, and the Philosophy of William James," presented at a symposium titled "Flourishing: What Can the Sciences and Philosophy Learn From Each Other About Human Well Being?" sponsored by the Society for Empirical Ethics, November 7-9, at Brattleboro, Vermont.

The College Board and the Educational Testing Service have appointed Dr. Keith Chair of the National Advanced Placement Psychology Test Development Committee.

Mitch Malachowski, Chemistry Department, recently completed a term as the President of the Council on Undergraduate Research. This is a national organization of over 3,000 individual members and 400 institutional members (of which USD is one) that are committed to supporting faculty research that involves undergraduate students.

Dr. Malachowski gave the 2003 Merck/AAAS Research Symposium plenary presentation at Marist College in Poughkeepsie, New York on November 7 entitled "Molecular Engineering: Probing Biological Molecules through the Synthesis of Synthetic Models." He was the keynote speaker at the 37th annual Middle Atlantic Association of Liberal Arts Chemistry Teachers held at Gettysburg College, Gettysburg, Pennsylvania, October 2-3. His talk was entitled, "To Do or Not to Do: The Benefits and Challenges of Engaging in Research at Undergraduate Institutions."

Dr. Malachowski served on a visitation team for the NCAA that reviewed the athletic programs at the University of Tennessee Chattanooga from June 9-13.

Dr. Malachowski gave a presentation and led a series of workshops at the University of Wisconsin-LaCrosse's Research Day on August 26. His talk was entitled, "Fostering a Campus Culture that Supports Faculty-Student Research." He gave the keynote address at the 9th annual CUR institute on Institutionalizing Undergraduate Research held at College of New Jersey on October 16-18. His talk was entitled, "Undergraduate Research and its Impact on Predominately Undergraduate Institutions."

Dr. Malachowski gave the keynote address at the 15th Northern California Undergraduate Research Symposium held at the University of San Francisco on May 3. His talk was entitled, "The Challenges of Engaging in Research at Predominately Undergraduate Institutions."

Dr. Malachowski published a chapter in the book Valuing and Supporting Undergraduate Research which was edited by Joyce Kinkead and published as part of the New Directions for Teaching and Learning series by Jossey-Bass publishers. His chapter is entitled, "A Research Across the Curriculum Movement."

Sharon McGuire and Jane Georges, School of Nursing and Health Science authored "Undocumentedness and liminality as health variables" published in Advances in Nursing Science 26(3), 185-195.

Mike McIntyre, Director of University Ministry, was awarded the USD Order of Omega Faculty/Staff Advisor of the Year Award at the Greek Awards Reception on November 19. This award acknowledges the work he has done with Delta Tau Delta Fraternity as their on-campus advisor.

Marie Minnick, Assistant Dean of Students, was awarded the USD Order of Omega Commitment to Excellence Award at the Greek Awards Reception on November 19. This award honors the faculty or staff member who has best modeled the values of leadership, scholarship, and character to the fraternity and sorority community over the past year.

Mary Rose Mueller, School of Nursing and Health Science, authored "Confronting inequities in HIV/AIDS care in the USA: Suggested lines of investigation" published in Critical Public Health 13(4), 347-356. The article was co-authored with L. Mamo.

Therese Muranaka, Research Associate, Anthropology, and Cynthia Hernandez, Research Associate, Anthropology, presented a paper in June on archaeological sites in military zones at the Fifth World Archaeological Congress, held at Catholic University in Washington, D.C., in a session with members of the British military environmental team and U.S. archaeologists from Ft. Hood, Texas. Currently, Muranaka is overseeing a grant to Torrey Pines State Reserve for engineering geologist, Dr. Jeffrey Johnson, to study the history of the trails from prehistoric times to the present, and offer designs for trail restoration. She has presented DNA samples from the descendents of the San Diego Presidio for analysis in the ongoing DNA studies of Santa Barbara Natural History Museum's Dr. John Johnson. Muranaka has finished a ground penetrating radar and electro-magnetic resistivity study of Old Town San Diego's Fitch Quarter in conjunction with the U.S. Navy. She and her team are working at Goat Canyon in Border Field State Park on the Tijuana Border for sedimentation basins to be constructed by Coastal Conservancy, along with several other projects in the same area.

Susan Payment, Student Affairs, completed her two-year term of office as Regional Director for Region 15 of the Association of College Unions International (ACUI) on November 8. The transition took place at the conclusion of the regional conference held at California State University, Monterey Bay, November 6-8. Dr. Payment also served as a co-presenter for two educational sessions: "Sharing the ACUI Story: What is ACUI Anyway?" and "The Good, the Bad and the Ugly: Concert Programming on a Shoestring Budget." Staff members Kara Braniff, Branda Cook, and Kathy McIntosh also attended the conference, along with graduate student Breanne Linsner and undergraduates Daniel Barbey and Kelly Feidler.

Amadeo Rea, Anthropology, attended the annual Ethnobiology meetings in Seattle in April. In June, he carried out field work in Arizona and Sonora, Mexico, among the Maricopa, Gila Pima, Pima Bajo, and Mountain Pima. During the summer, he made revisions to his forthcoming book for the University of Arizona Press about the folk ornithology of the Northern Pimans. In October, Dr. Rea was a consultant and interviewee for Brighton Films' The Chihuahua Mummy for National Geographic.

Margit J. Smith, Copley Library, received a travel grant from the International and Interdisciplinary Development Committee to study early book structures, in particular the girdle book, in Montefiascone, Italy and attend a course on Advanced Paper Restoration in Ascona, Switzerland. For the same study trip she received a Fellowship from AMIGOS Library Services to help with tuition, room, and board.

Several of Smith's hand bound books were exhibited at the SD Public Library and at SDSU as part of the annual exhibits of the San Diego Book Arts group.

Two articles she wrote, "Silverfish – their activities and how to stop them" and "Repairing books and preserving the general collection," were published in the journal Archival Products News. Another article "Restoration of an 18th century vellum bound book" has been accepted for publication in the Rare Books Newsletter (Library Association UK) Spring 2004 issue.

Rose Tyson, Anthropology, curated the exhibit, "Dig Balcony: An Addition to Footsteps Through Time: Four Million Years of Human Evolution" for the San Diego Museum of Man in February. In March, she delivered the keynote address for the Johns Hopkins Science Day, "Primates: from Prosimians to People" at the San Diego Museum of Man. In April, she presented "A History of the Seminar in the Forensic Sciences" at the 15th Annual Seminar in the Forensic Sciences, San Diego Museum of Man, and a poster, "Charles Merbs and his Work at the San Diego Museum of Man" at the Annual Meeting of the Paleopathology Association, Tempe, Arizona. In July, Tyson curated the exhibit "Gigantopithecus," and her edited volume, Footsteps Through Time: Four Million Years of Human Evolution was published by the San Diego Museum of Man. In September, she contributed a presentation in the 12:00 o'clock scholar series, "With holes in their heads: Peruvian trephined skulls" at the San Diego Museum of Man. In October, Tyson was interviewed by Brighton Films for The Chihuahua Mummy for National Geographic. In November, she curated "Efe: Archers of the Congo" at the San Diego Museum of Man. In December, Tyson curated "Models of ancient humans: Perceptions from the Panama-California Exposition, 1915" at the San Diego Museum of Man.

Elaine Worzala, research and MSRE director of the Real Estate Institute, has been invited to serve on the University Relations Committee, an Appraisal Institute committee that establishes partnerships with universities in conducting research and offering real estate appraisal education. The Appraisal Institute is an international association of professional real estate appraisers, with more than 18,000 members and 99 chapters throughout the United States, Canada, and abroad. Dr. Worzala will focus on the Masters Degree Program Subcommittee as she continues to develop the University of San Diego's Master of Science in Real Estate.
