James Keenan, SJ, is the Founders Professor of Theology at Boston College. A Jesuit priest since 1982, he received a licentiate in 1984 and a doctorate in 1988 from the Pontifical Gregorian University in Rome. He has edited or written 16 books and approximately 250 articles. In 2010, he hosted an international conference of theological ethicists in Trento, Italy, and published three books: A History of Catholic Moral Theology in the Twentieth Century: From Confessing Sins to Liberating Consciences; Paul and Virtue Ethics (with Dan Harrington); and Ethics of the Word: Voices in the Catholic Church Today. He has been writing on HIV/AIDS since 1987.
