

The Center for Inclusion and Diversity Grant Announcement 2010-2011

The Center for Inclusion and Diversity is now accepting grant proposals for 2010-2011. All USD faculty, students, administrators and staff are eligible to submit proposals.

Successful proposals should focus on one or more of the following concerns:

- Conducting or Supporting Research
- Creating or Finding Resources
- Galvanizing and Expanding Recruitment
- Nurturing and Refining Retention

Successful proposals concerning:

- Research should seek to explore, engage, question, and embrace diversity and inclusion as essential to intellectual, cultural, individual, and social development.
- Resources should seek to create and sustain the funding, information, and relationships necessary to support our research, recruitment and retention efforts.
- Recruitment should seek innovative and realistic ways to recruit a diverse constituency
- Retention should seek practical and effective ways to retain a diverse constituency

Proposals will be evaluated on the strength of their perceived benefit to our ongoing efforts to create and sustain the Center for Inclusion and Diversity as a vibrant and productive force in inclusion and diversity efforts at the University of San Diego, and beyond its borders. Exemplary proposals should (1) be clear, logical and easy to understand, (2) articulate a specific, significant problem, purpose or research question, and (3) give clear attention to issues of inclusion and diversity and focus on one or more of the four categories above. Additionally, proposals involving direct interactions with human subjects need Institutional Review Board (IRB) approval. For IRB guidelines see: <http://www.sandiego.edu/administration/academicaffairs/irb/>.
