Schools that require Anatomy/Physiology:

Creighton School of Medicine and the University of Arizona, Phoenix require and will accept one of the following options:

Bio 478 (1 semester of Vertebrate Physiology)

Bio 320 (1 semester of Comparative Anatomy of Vertebrates)

Bio 212 and Bio 213 (2 semesters of Anatomy and Physiology)

These courses will satisfy the requirements for most medical schools. Make sure that you check for additional requirements at your selected schools. Most schools want you to have completed the required courses prior to the time of application. Take all required classes for a grade; Pass/Fail is not acceptable. Grades below a “C” are not considered passing for most medical schools.

MCAT

Taken upon completion of prerequisites and before application to medical school.

Extracurricular Activities

Clinical Volunteer/Shadowing: Experiences in medical settings are important ways for you to learn about the field of medicine.

Research: Research experiences are strongly recommended by many medical schools especially for students with science majors. Choose any type of research that interests you – on or off campus – paid or unpaid.

Community Service/Leadership: There are many opportunities on and off campus to become involved. It's always best to find something meaningful to you and to participate in it over time.
