USD Law and SDSU Announce Dual Degree

SDSU and USD have partnered to launch a new dual degree program that allows students to earn both a Juris Doctor of Law (JD) and a Master of Public Administration (MPA). As part of the new degree offering, qualifying students can earn a JD/MPA simultaneously within eight semesters instead of 10 semesters, which is the time that it would take to pursue both advanced degrees separately.

The program begins in Fall 2025, pending CSU Board of Trustees approval, and interested current and prospective students are asked to apply by the respective university system deadlines. Students currently enrolled in SDSU's MPA program or USD's JD degree program are qualified to apply if they are in good academic standing at their home institution.
