Dear Students,

We have received many questions about the current class options, Remote, Hybrid, In-Person, and In-Person Only. Below you will find definitions for each class option.

Next week we will host a Law Student Town Hall. Please join us Thursday, July 30, at Noon PST via Zoom. We ask that you submit your questions via this [LINK] prior to the Town Hall.

Course Formats - Definitions for Fall 2020 Classes

Remote – Classes designated as “Remote” will be taught exclusively remotely via Zoom. You will see an “R” added on the section level in Banner that designates a class as Remote. Examples are LWBC54501R or LWBC54502R for Corporations. These classes are not assigned to a classroom.

Hybrid – Classes designated as Hybrid will be taught as a hybrid model where half of the enrolled students will attend in person, while the other half of students will simultaneously participate via Zoom. Students will alternate between attending in person (on their assigned days) and via Zoom. Students enrolled in Hybrid classes will be divided alphabetically by the Registrar’s Office, not by student or professor preference. You will see an “H” added on the section level in Banner that designates a class as Hybrid. An example is LWBC51001H for Bankruptcy. Students may attend these classes remotely if they are Remote Only.

In-Person – Classes designated as In-Person are small enough that all students can fit into the assigned classroom with social distancing. The professor will teach all classes in person. There is no designated character in Banner for an In-Person class. Students may attend these classes remotely if they are Remote Only.

In-Person Only – Classes designated as In-Person Only are experiential or participation-based classes that the professor has designated as being open only to students who can attend in person. No remote attendance is permitted. This designation is based on professor preferences and due to the nature of how their class is taught.
Students who elected to attend the Fall 2020 semester via the Remote Model are expected to attend all classes remotely and not to physically attend class. However, if you opted for the Remote Model and would like to enroll in, or are enrolled in, one of the In-Person Only classes and are able to attend in-person, you must request a waiver to attend here.

In Fall 2020, the following classes are designated as In-Person Only:
- Deals
- Interviewing & Counseling
- Mediation Skills (both sections)
- Tax Planning Lab
- Trial Advocacy (both sections)

If you opted for the Remote Model and are enrolled in any of the above classes you must either: (1) Drop the class; or (2) Request a waiver to physically attend this class. No waivers will be provided for students to attend the above classes remotely.

Important Information:
- All Remote, Hybrid, and In-Person classes will be available remotely to those students who have elected the Remote Model. In-Person Only classes will not be available for remote attendance.
- Students who have elected the Remote Model for Fall 2020 are expected to attend all classes remotely and not to physically attend class.
- Hybrid classes may change to In-Person delivery should enrollment drop low enough to fit into the assigned classroom.
- In-Person classes may change to Remote delivery should the circumstances change for the assigned professor or a large majority of the students in the class choose to attend remotely.
