Program Unit: Legal Studies MS

College/School: School of Law

Assessment Overview
The Master of Science (MS) in Legal Studies program assesses five learning outcomes over a year course of study: Analysis, Research and Reasoning; Context of the Legal Profession; Legal Writing; Professional Skills; and Substantive Law. Student learning in this LLM program is assessed using direct measures such as presentations, course/program examinations, research papers, or capstone assignments/projects. Collectively these measures allow us to determine the level and quality of education attained by our students.

Results Summary
The MS in Legal Studies is a one-year full-time program of basic study of law. The participant already possesses an underlying degree, usually an undergraduate degree from an accredited U.S. school or its equivalent from a foreign university. The basic coursework is elected from the first year of study of the first year of a JD course in law, along with upper division courses in the student's preferred field of study. Each course uses different assessment methods depending on the course material and the best methods of assessment. The assessment outcomes focus on the five learning outcomes listed above.
