What do the fees cover?

Student Activity Fee

Benefits: The Graduate Student Activity Fee is dedicated to funding graduate student research and/or professional development. The fees are distributed between the Graduate Student Council and the individual graduate school association or programs.

For more information about the benefits: please visit Graduate Student Life.

Student Wellness Fee

Benefits: The Student Wellness Fee provides students with access and care at all the on-campus USD Wellness Units including the Center for Health and Wellness Promotion, Counseling Center, and Student Health Center.

For more information about the services provided: visit the Student Wellness website.

Facility Fee - Wellness Center

Benefits: The three-story, 80,000 square-foot facility will provide accessible indoor and outdoor spaces where the entire campus community can find connections between physical activity, diet and nutrition, mental health, inner self, engagement and belonging.

Features include:

- Dedicated areas for fitness, wellness and athletics
- Flexible rooms for exercise and health-related classes of every kind
- Advanced strength training and cardio equipment
- Counseling services and care advocate offices
- A teaching kitchen for healthy diet and nutrition programs
- Informal meeting and recreation spaces available to the entire campus community

Note: The Wellness Facility is currently under construction. Until students have full access to this building, the Facility Fee will not be charged.

For more information about the facility: visit the USD Wellness Center.

Student Life Pavilion Fee

Benefits: The Student Life Pavilion Fee provides spaces for student government, student organizations including fraternity and sorority life, the Changemaker Hub, Black Student Resource Commons, LGBTQ+Allies Student Commons, United Front Multicultural Commons, Women's Commons, graduate and law students and student media. It has become the hub of campus life, a central gathering place for fostering a sense of community among graduate, undergraduate and law students, faculty and staff.

Students in a referendum vote approved the Student Life Pavilion fee.
